DIRECTORS NOTES

It's a joy to return to Anything Goes—a show that has accompanied me through three different chapters of my career. I first worked on this musical as a vocal coach at Sandy High School, then again during my first year teaching at Barlow in 2014. Now, a decade later, I find myself revisiting this timeless piece with a new generation of students, and my love for it has only deepened.

Cole Porter's music bursts with wit, sophistication, and playful irreverence. The farcical script reminds us that laughter, romance, and a bit of chaos can still bring people together. In an age when our country often feels increasingly restrictive—where creativity and individuality sometimes feel at risk—Anything Goes reminds us of the power of entertainment to liberate the spirit. Theatre invites us to escape, to dream, to celebrate humanity in all its messy, musical glory.

What makes this production truly special, however, is the community behind it. I am continually amazed by the creativity and collaboration of our design team, directors, volunteers, and—most importantly—the students who pour their hearts into every song and scene. Their humor, kindness, and courage give me hope for what theatre can continue to mean in the world.

I feel incredibly lucky to tell stories like this, surrounded by people who remind me daily that joy itself can be an act of resistance. Thank you for joining us on this voyage—because in the end, Anything Goes!
